I. INTRODUCTION

1. On 1 January 1992, the Secretary-General established the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms in accordance with General Assembly resolution 46/36 L of 9 December 1991, entitled "Transparency in armaments". In that resolution, the General Assembly called upon all Member States to provide annually for the Register data on imports and exports of conventional arms in the seven categories covered under the Register. It also invited Member States, pending the expansion of the Register, to provide to the Secretary-General, with their annual report on imports and exports of arms, available background information regarding their military holdings, procurement through national production and relevant policies, and requested the Secretary-General to record this material and to make it available for consultation by Member States at their request.

2. In the same resolution, the General Assembly also requested the Secretary-General, with the assistance of a panel of governmental technical experts to elaborate the technical procedures and to make any adjustments to the annex to the resolution necessary for the effective operation of the Register, and to prepare a report on the modalities for early expansion of the scope of the Register by the addition of further categories of equipment and inclusion of data on military holdings and procurement through national production. The report of the Panel was submitted to the Assembly at its forty-seventh session (A/47/342 and Corr.1 and 3).

3. At its forty-seventh session, the General Assembly, by its resolution 47/52 L of 15 December 1992, entitled "Transparency in armaments", endorsed the recommendations of the Panel of Governmental Technical Experts as contained in the report of the Secretary-General (ibid.). It also called upon all Member States to provide the requested data and information to the Secretary-General by 30 April annually, beginning in 1993, and encouraged Member States to inform the Secretary-General of their national arms import and export policies, legislation and administrative procedures, both as regards authorization of arms transfers and prevention of illicit transfers, in conformity with paragraph 18 of its resolution 46/36 L.

4. In October 1993, a consolidated report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms, containing data and information provided by 80 Governments for the calendar year 1992, was issued. After its publication, 10 more Governments provided data and information for the calendar year 1992 (A/48/344 and Corr.1-3 and Add.1-3).

5. At its forty-eighth session, the General Assembly in its resolution 48/75 E of 16 December 1993, entitled "Transparency in armaments", again called upon all Member States to provide the requested data and information for the Register to the Secretary-General by 30 April annually. Furthermore, it requested the Secretary-General to prepare a report, with the assistance of a group of governmental experts to be convened in 1994, on the continuing operation of the Register and its further development, taking into account the work of the Conference on Disarmament and the views expressed by Member States, with a view to a decision at its forty-ninth session. The Group of Governmental Experts concluded its work in August and the report has been submitted to the Assembly at its forty-ninth session (A/49/316).

6. The present report is submitted in accordance with the request contained in General Assembly resolution 48/75 E. Thus far, 81 Governments have provided data and information for the calendar year 1993. The replies are contained in section II below. Any additional replies received from Governments will be issued as addenda to the present report.

7. In addition, section III of the report contains an index of the background information submitted by Governments in accordance with operative paragraphs 10 and 18 of General Assembly resolution 46/36 L and operative paragraph 5 of resolution 47/52 L. The background information is available at the Centre for Disarmament Affairs for consultation.

II. INFORMATION RECEIVED FROM GOVERNMENTS

8. Information received from Governments is presented in this section of the report as follows: (a) a composite table listing all the replies received by the Secretary-General, and (b) individual replies of Governments. Where appropriate, the relevant parts of notes verbales are also reproduced.

9. The composite table is provided for ease of reference. As regards the information contained in the table, it should be noted that a "yes" denotes a submission of data regarding imports and/or exports in relation to the seven categories of arms covered by the Register, during the reporting period. For the purpose of uniform tabulation, responses by Governments that contained either "nil", "none", "0", a dash (-), or which otherwise indicated that no exports and/or imports in the categories covered by the Register had taken place are reflected in the table as "nil" reports. A blank space under imports and/or exports in the composite table indicates that no information was provided for that particular item. In some cases, however, an explanation can be found in the note verbale of the country in question, as indicated above.

10. It should be noted that in order to comply as much as practicable with General Assembly resolution 34/50 of 23 November 1979 regarding the length of Assembly documentation, only standardized forms containing specific data and notes verbales of Governments providing relevant information are reproduced in part B of this section. Replies in standardized forms or in notes verbales containing "nil" or blank reports as described in paragraph 9 above are listed in the composite table only.

B. Replies received from Governments

AFGHANISTAN

[Original: English]

[26 May 1994]

I would like to bring to your kind attention the general difficulties my country is faced with in regard to the issues of the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms. Given the special circumstances in Afghanistan, where conventional armaments are widely dispersed and in the possession of the various factional groups, the preparation of data and information for the Register of Conventional Arms is not feasible for Afghanistan under the present circumstances.

Australia's response also contains the following information regarding its imports and exports:

"Exports

"Australia has not exported any items within the defined categories of the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms. We note, however, that Australia has exported an obsolete Scorpion armoured vehicle to a New Zealand museum and an obsolete Saracen armoured vehicle to Papua New Guinea for use by a private company as secure transport for cash, securities and bullion. Neither vehicle is suitable for military use.

"We also note that Singapore and Brunei Darussalam were required by Australian Customs to obtain an export licence to remove some of their own military equipment from Australia following exercise and training activities. This equipment was never under Australian control, and its transfer did not represent either the export or import of military equipment and therefore falls outside the scope of the Register.

"Imports

"Australia in the relevant period imported:

"(a) Six F-111 aircraft from the United States, as part of a purchase of 15 of these aircraft;

"(b) Seven missiles and missile launchers, also from the United States;

"(c) One DDG-class warship, which was not commissioned into the Royal Australian Navy and never will be, and is now in the process of being dismantled for spares.

"The figure for missiles and launchers includes Harpoon, Sparrow, and Standard missiles, and all were telemetry-training missiles."

Background information

Large calibre artillery systems

Austria bought 92 pieces of United States-made M109 A2 self-propelled Howitzers from the United Kingdom in 1993. As there was no distribution of items before the fall of 1994, there was no import reported in 1993. The deliveries will be taken into account in next year's report, if the items are delivered in 1994 according to the schedule.

CROATIA

[Original: English]

[13 June 1994]

Bearing in mind the fact that Security Council resolution 713 (1991) is still in force, and maintaining its position as expressed in its notes verbales 15/93 of 30 April 1993 and 19/93 of 5 May 1993, the Republic of Croatia states that no import or export of armaments or military equipment has taken place, and is thus submitting a "nil report".

a/ Of the 54 battle tanks, 22 arrived at their destination in Greece in 1994.

b/ One submarine kit arrived at its destination in the Republic of Korea in 1994.

c/ Ships are partly demilitarized.

d/ Other purchases/sales within the collaboration of France, Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland will be declared as procurement by the end-user. The figures for Italy do not include test missiles (type RP/C-M28).

The reply of Germany also contained the following notes:

"Figures given for exports include items for demilitarization, destruction, disposal, as well as deliveries to allied forces stationed in Germany.

"According to the definitions of the resolution, only complete weapons or entire building kits were included; imports or deliveries of components to be used in arms production, including joint production, are not included. As temporary imports/exports for repair, exhibition, trial or presentation purposes also do not fall within the scope of the Register, they were not included.

"Data include transfers by the Federal Armed Forces as well as by German industry.

"In Germany, arms production is part of the private sector. There are no public enterprises active in this field. Data provided are based on checked information furnished by private enterprises.

"Background information on German export controls on armaments was submitted to the United Nations on 14 July 1992 (see A/47/370). It still holds valid. Updated background information as to defence and arms control policies will be submitted after publication of the respective annual reports.

"It becomes obvious from the figures that transfers mainly took place within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Deliveries to other countries were rather rare. This reflects the German arms export policy. Temporary increases in exports are the result of transfers of equipment of the former German Democratic Republic armed forces mainly to other States parties to the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe of 19 November 1990 and do not indicate any change in the restrictive export policies pursued by the Federal Government."

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

[Original: English]

[28 April 1994]

Last year, the United States provided background information regarding relevant United States policies, legislation and administrative procedures. The 1994 United States submission includes updates to this material.

It is possible that there will be discrepancies in the numbers of transferred arms in the different categories as reported by exporting and importing States, as the result of differences in perceived dates of transfer and in interpretations of the definition of what constitutes a reportable transfer.

The United States considers that a transfer of arms or military equipment occurs at the time that the ownership title for the equipment is transferred between the United States and another country. The 1994 submission therefore includes equipment whose title was transferred during the 1993 calendar year.

YUGOSLAVIA

[Original: English]

[9 May 1994]

The Permanent Mission of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia to the United Nations has the honour to inform that the Government of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia has neither imported nor exported arms during 1993, since, by Security Council resolution 713 (1991), an arms embargo was imposed on the territory of the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. Therefore, the reply should be interpreted as a "nil report" for the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia for the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms for 1993.
